TWENTY-SEVENTH SUNDAY IN ORDINARY TIME

OCTOBER 4, 2015

We live in a society that has many technological avenues for stimulation and entertainment, one in which the urban population exceeds the non-urban. It is curious that loneliness is a prevalent malady. It is easy to reach out and touch someone, we are told. But—in truth—it is not all that easy, and statistics from the mental health field will reinforce that opinion. Today's readings are about the ways in which we can authentically reach out: God touches Adam to create a mate and end his solitude; God-in-Jesus takes on human flesh and death in order that we might come to glory; Jesus reaches out to the children whom the disciples had tried to keep away, showing us the manner in which we must approach the loving embrace that awaits us in heaven. Until that day, however, we must remember that ours is a sacramental Church, a Church of signs of the love of God. And so we are called to be reaching out continually to ease the loneliness and the barriers that separate us from one another and, therefore, from the love of Christ.

AN ODD COUPLE

The two sections of today's Gospel seem to be mismatched. In the first, Jesus is a stern teacher of the law; in the second he is gentle and tender. Scholarly commentators may tell us that these were two isolated episodes from the life of Jesus that Mark placed next to each other in the Gospel. They may be right, but over and above that we need to remember that the scriptures are inspired by the Holy Spirit. We are called upon to seek the Spirit's guidance as we hear these passages today, as Mark did when he was joining them together. These two portraits can expand our understanding of relationships between human beings as a means of understanding God's relationship with us.

Today's Readings: Gen 2:18–24; Ps 128:1–6; Heb 2:9–11; Mk 10:2–16 [2–12]
(Worship Pgs. 1188)
